

IN TIMES LIKE THESE
© Roger Holdstock 2012

In times like these I know I need a friend
The kind who will stay with you till the end Someone I can tell the things I never thought I knew
Someone I can promise love and hope it all is true
In times like these the winds are rough
The calms are all too few
In times like these I need someone
. . Like you

In times like these I know I need a home
A place inside that follows where I roam
A shelter with a light on; a warm and welcome space
No matter where I lose my way
I see your loving face
In times like these to face the world takes two
In times like these I need someone
. . . Like you

The world is too much with us
We've had 40 days of rain
They say it should be spring now
But winter's back again

We follow our blue highways
Drive all through summer nights
At times the gauge says empty
As the dawn brings back the light

It's 3 am and now the guests are gone We've drunk the wine and all the songs are sung
The kids are out, the house is quiet
The dog needs one more walk
The moon rides low above the trees
We whisper as we talk
At times like these, everything rings true
At times like these, the song in me is you
At times like these, the song in me
. . . Is you.
